SPINELESS: A GLASS MENAGERIE OF BLASCHKA MARINE INVERTEBRATES

C. D. Mallory Building (4)

A major exhibition of highly accurate 19th-century glass models of marine invertebrates created by father and son glassmakers Leopold and Rudolf Blaschka of Dresden, Germany. The models encapsulate the history of science at the time and speak to contemporary concerns of biodiversity and ocean health.

ALEXIS ROCKMAN: OCEANUS

Collins Gallery, Thompson Building (1)

A major exhibition featuring ten large-scale watercolors and an 8-by-24-foot panoramic painting intended to raise awareness and inspire conversations around the critical global issues that face our oceans due to the impacts of maritime activities as part of our collective cultural, social, and economic heritage.
